

Collaboration for better welcome services

Examples from EURAXESS network

Why collaborate?

- Better and more comprehensive service
- Share and save resources
- Critical mass
- Visibility
- Knowledge exchange and new ideas

Different patterns of collaboration

Comprehensive collaborations: welcome centres

- Offering broad portfolio of services
- Hosted by municipalities/regional governments - services for all internationals
- Alliances of universities and research institutions - services for researchers and/or students

Small scale collaborations: focus on particular activities

Who to collaborate with?

- Other universities and higher education institutions, interregional consortium composed of universities
- Research organisations and technological centres
- City council, municipality
- Local authorities (immigration office, police office, tax authorities, state office, embassies, consulates, vehicle registration authority)
- Local departments of government bodies (Ministry of Internal Affairs, Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, Ministry of Economic Affairs)
- Public Employment Service
- Local companies, small and medium enterprises (SMEs), business partners
- Local chambers of commerce, confederations of employers
- Alumni, PhD, PostDoc or scientific associations
- Student networks (Erasmus Student Network, AEEGE, AEISEC)
- Other networks – on the national, European or international level – e. g. Eures, EEN
- Private organisations (language schools, banks)
- Further training institutions (e.g. school for continuing non-credit education)
- Non-profit organisations – societies and associations (e. g. cultural centres)
- Museums, leisure facilities, sports unions, etc.
- Expat centres
- Local schools
- Local society

Areas of collaboration

- Administrative assistance
- Accommodation
- Language learning
- Social integration – events and activities for researchers and their families
- Career support for researchers and their spouses
- Networking and knowledge sharing
